Disclosures

Principal Risks:

An investment in the Fund is subject to risks, including the possibility that the value of the Fund's portfolio holdings may fluctuate in response to events specific to the companies in which the Fund invests, as well as economic, political or social events in the U.S. or abroad. Foreign investments often involve special risks not present in U.S. investments that can increase the chances that the Fund will lose money. Emerging markets are riskier than more developed markets because they tend to develop unevenly and may never fully develop. Emerging markets are more likely to experience hyperinflation and currency devaluations, which adversely affect returns to U.S. investors. Currency risk is the risk that changes in currency exchange rates will negatively affect securities denominated in, and/or receiving revenues in, foreign currencies.

The use of derivatives, including swaps, forward and futures contracts, exposes the Fund to additional risks including increased volatility, lack of liquidity, and possible losses greater than the Fund's initial investment as well as increased transaction costs. The Fund from time to time employs various hedging techniques. The success of the Fund's hedging strategy will be subject to the investment adviser's ability to correctly assess the degree of correlation between the performance of the instruments used in the hedging strategy and the performance of the investments in the portfolio being hedged. This Fund takes short positions in derivative instruments. A short position in a derivative instrument involves the risk of a theoretically unlimited increase in the value of the underlying instrument, which could cause the Fund to suffer a (potentially unlimited) loss. Short sales also involve transaction and other costs that will reduce potential Fund gains and increase potential Fund losses. The Fund is subject to high portfolio turnover risk as a result of frequent trading, and thus, will incur a higher level of brokerage fees and commissions, and cause a higher level of tax liability to shareholders in the Fund.

The Fund is not suitable for all investors. An investor considering the Fund should be able to tolerate potentially wide price fluctuations. There are risks involved with investing including the possible loss of principal. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Diversification does not eliminate the risk of experiencing investment losses. Definitions:

Beta is a measure of how sensitive a Fund's return is to changes in a benchmark index. A beta of greater than 1 indicates a higher sensitivity to benchmark moves, and a beta less than 1 indicates lower sensitivity.

Volatility is a statistical measure of the variation in returns for a given security or index.

Information Ratio is a measure of performance of a security or investment against its benchmark.
